

End-User Computing

- How does end-user computing help in optimizing end-users in an organization or business?
-End-user Computing help end-users to leverage virtualized infrastructure to better manage the needs of both employees and organization, one of the example is end-user works with a series of centralized app and services to forming a unified workflow.
- What aspects of end-user computing and development would use consider if you are to make an information system for end-users?
-It have a key-advantages secure end-user environment allowing users to safely access virtual desktop apps and company data without storing anything on local devices. Also BYOD Support or “Bring Your Own Device” to helps reduce the high cost of software refresh while promoting workforce mobility.
- What possible applications for end-user computing can you think of for a specific organization or business?
-A centralized management virtual applications like Microsoft Office for Small Accounting Firm for their workflow, enhance productivity, and manage data without relying on IT Specialists, Customized Financial Reporting like(Excel), Secure Remote Desktop Access, also Digital Document Management like (Word/PDF)

Cite Video:

<https://youtu.be/h8tvoLPj8g0?si=1yUmje0BpMHUGiFp>